Students need to be encouraged to 'see' as well as look. Our world is made up of many different elements whether man made or natural that can give us a sense of wonderment and students will be encouraged to explore these in their own environment.	Photography is used to document the world around us, but we all see the world in different ways. In today's digital world, can you believe everything you see and has this always been a problem. Explore how artist throughout time has used manipulation techniques to question how people see the work. Students will look at digital editing to produce work reflecting on perception and humour	Explore a range of work by artists across different times in history to contextualise the physical and digital skills being taught through this topic. Exploring artists allow us to see how other have formed opinions among similar topics and how they approach exploring ideas.	Researching the theme of water Students introduced to the theme and are encouraged to explore their own ideas around the theme Students will be encouraged to work independently through the explorative process and make work independently in reaction to the theme. 	The formal elements are Line, Tone, Colour, Texture, Pattern, Tone, Shape and Form All of these can be enhanced or displayed alongside composition methods to force viewers to see another world. Artists and textile designers use a number of different techniques to convey light, colour and pattern in their work.	How you respond to the world is the essence of Art. Creating a piece of art must be in response to something you have seen, wondered about, or understood. Students will work to produce their own textile response to 'the world around them'	Students will look at a range of textile techniques around their chosen country theme.	Students will respond to the theme presented to them, through combining their experiences and understanding during the topic.	Workshops are important to form the backbone of thinking and introduce the students to different skills. Core skills covered will be, fabric manipulation, embellishment, beading, embroidery.	Students will respond to the theme presented to them, through combining their experiences and understanding during the topic.
